

Become an Unusually Effective
Public School Teacher in one year

Sposato Graduate School of Education

Change a child's life.

Want to be a game-changing rookie teacher in a high-performing urban public school? We think teaching is the hardest and most important job in the world—a job that demands highly focused and intensive preparation. Start your career off right by becoming a Match Teacher Resident (MTR) or a Match Associate Teacher (MAT).

MTRs spend each week as tutors in Match Corps, and regularly spend time in classrooms where they observe, assist and eventually student teach.

MATs are embedded in the classrooms of full-time teachers, from the beginning of the year, where they play a substantial role in delivering instruction, and student teaching. MATs may also assume substitute-teaching responsibilities.

MTRs and MATs attend classes at the Charles Sposato Graduate School of Education (CSGSE) and participate in teaching simulations two or three times a week, on evenings and weekends, to hone and improve their teaching skills. CSGSE alumni serve as full-time teachers at high-performing urban schools. While teaching, they continue with a year-long distance-learning course that's supported by individualized coaching. Classroom practice is evaluated and assessed to determine conferment of a Master's in Effective Teaching (MET) degree.

EDUCATION

215 FOREST HILLS STREET, BOSTON, MA 02130

We offer two pathways for teacher trainees, based upon background experience. Candidates for both programs must hold a bachelor's degree and be committed to the challenging work of teaching in high-performing urban environments. The Match Teacher Residency Program is tailored to candidates with modest amounts of work with children, whereas the Match Associate Teacher Program requires at least a year of full-time work with children as a prerequisite.

TEACHER RESIDENCY ELIGIBILITY

- Become a highly effective teacher in a high-performing urban public school.
- Obtain teacher certification.
- Pursue a Masters Degree in Effective Teaching.
